Daily weekday gallery talks have been scheduled through January 19 for the Museum's current special exhibition, The Sculpture of Thailand. In announcing the special lectures Miss Janet Moore, Curator of Art History and Education, pointed out that a similiar series to enrich Museum viewers at the exhibition Masterpieces From the Guggenheim had drawn an average of nearly 40 people to each presentation.

The exhibition of Thai sculpture is also supported by a special audio-visual tape narrated by the Museum's Director, Sherman E. Lee. The slide tape is shown daily and week-ends in the audio-visual center. The program repeats every 15 minutes.

A 30 minute film on the "Archaeology of Thailand" is also being shown in the Museum's Lecture Hall, weekdays at 2:30 p.m. (Museum closed on Mondays).
